

and the gentle gales of peace will safely waft thy tottering bark to the heaven of true felicity.

MORAL.

Young People should value the admonitions of mature experience, as the dictates of wisdom and understanding; and remember the burden of an old song, which ends thus :

*Young man beware, be wise, take care,
The blind eat many a fly.*

HISTORY OF ABRAOULF.

IN Visapour, the capital city of the kingdom of Decoran, dwelt Abraoulf, a jeweller by trade : in his art he had but few equals : the bracelets that sparkled upon the arms of the fultanas of Visapour were made by him : and so exquisite was his workmanship, that it contributed to set off the charms of the most beautiful of the creation.

Abraoulf finding wealth flow in upon him from every quarter, formed the most flattering prospects of a happy life ; and being persuaded that man is not capable of enjoying felicity

L

without

HIS